

MERCHANT TAILORS.—In consequence of ill-health I have been compelled to retire from business, and on this occasion I thank my partners and their generous and liberal friends most sincerely for the recommendation of their services. BEAUMONT & DESMINE, who I am not surprised to find have been equally qualified to continue their usefulness.

It is very difficult to correct the bad, and to induce people to adopt true principles, who never the errors in which they have grown gray.

Philosophy and liberty, support one another; he who is not a reason is a slave.

Industry, well directed, will give a man a competency in a few years. The greatest industry interpellated us.

The shortest and surest way to live with honor in the world, is to be in reality what we would appear to be. He who never changes any of his opinions, never corrects them.

"Permit me to assure you that the best service we can do to our country is to act up to our convictions."
